When we look back on the years at Lehigh, the people we knew will come to mind. Memories not only of good friends but also of faces in classes and numbers on the playing field. The people we partied with — and parted from.

Wistfully we will recall the solid structures that housed classes we did not always go to. Other places may be more readily remembered — Taylor for many an exciting sports event, Linderman for a good conversation, and the Alumni Memorial for its long lines.

Studying was too rarely done in the sun. Hide outs for nervous nerds ranged from the stacks to the snackbar, the zoo to the bathroom, Mart to Coppee.

Alcoholic beverages were the only spirits not welcome in Taylor stadium. If our spirits were not already high by kickoff, we could be sure the Marching 97 and the cheerleaders would try to raise them.

Daily we reached into our mailboxes, hoping for letters from long lost friends, care packages from home, and — as we grew older — offers from companies and acceptances from graduate schools.

"The whole art of teaching is only the art of awakening the natural curiosity of young minds for the purpose of satisfying it afterwards."

— Anatole France

College of Arts and Sciences

Dean John W. Hunt sees the primary role of the College of Arts and Sciences as educating students in fundamental skills, knowledge, and habits of mind. Such an education contributes men and women equal to the needs of a changing society, providing them with the critical imagination to make the weighted value judgements that will determine the direction that society will choose for its future.

The new University catalog features "The Flowering of the Arts" in order to improve the academic balance among the three colleges, according to George Beezer, editor of the catalog and director of University publications.

"A disproportionate number of students are enrolling in the colleges of business and engineering," said Preston Parr, dean and vice president of student affairs. As of fall, 1980, 30% of all Lehigh undergraduates were enrolled in the arts college. However, Parr added, "Of those who do initially enroll in the College of Arts and Sciences, about 10% migrate very soon to business and economics."

The arts college is in "an unusual situation," according to Beezer, because it "has more departments than the other colleges." He explained "it is desirable to have a certain number of students majoring in these departments, and apparently they have not had as many as they wanted." Consequently, the focus on the arts.

Dean Hunt has focused great administrative attention upon developing ways "to release the considerable amount of imagination and leadership present in our faculty." He has also instituted a two-year rotating associate dean system that involves putting a faculty member in the dean's office so that the dean and the arts faculty have a channel of communication.

Since Hunt has been dean, the speech and theater department had expanded, and the old power house has been renovated to become the present Wilbur Drama Workshop. The music department has also expanded, and the Learning Center has opened in Coppee Hall.

Hunt has been most interested in faculty development. Since 1946, an Andrew W. Mellon grant has been used to "increase faculty flexibility, explore relationships between the humanities and the professions, and encourage more effective teaching."

College of Business and Economics

According to Dean Richard W. Barsness, the main objectives of the College of Business and Economics are to make the undergraduate program rank with the best in the East, to offer a high quality regional MBA program, and to expand the program of service to private enterprise.

The College of Business and Economics consists of three departments: accounting and law; economics; and management, finance and marketing. As of fall, 1980, 20% of all Lehigh undergraduates were enrolled in the college.

Dean Barsness cites several recent improvements in the college. An increase in the number of full-time faculty positions has reduced the average size of both undergraduate and graduate classes while cutting down on the use of adjunct (part-time) faculty. Moreover, the new faculty members are of a very high quality. The curriculum is making progress in terms of improved balance among the various disciplines — for example, marketing is becoming stronger but not at the expense of accounting, which continues to be strong. Finally, research and scholarship by the faculty has increased significantly, giving the college a stronger intellectual base — and increased recognition in both the academic and business worlds.

From the dean's point-of-view, desired changes would include substantial improvements in the college's physical facilities, some expansion of the elective course offerings in the college curriculum, and a sharper intellectual focus for the MBA program.

When asked what he liked about his job, Dean Barsness replied, "The diversity of activities week in and week out — and the fine quality of both the faculty and student body."

College of Engineering and Physical Sciences

On July 1, 1981, Donald M. Bolle is to succeed John J. Karakash as dean of the College of Engineering and Physical Sciences. Karakash is leaving because he has been at Lehigh for 35 years — "I am like a fixture, hanging from the ceiling here" — and believes it is time to move on.

Appointed dean in 1966, Karakash's fondest memories are of the many students he has met and worked with during his years at the University. According to Frederick M. Fowkes, chairman of the department of chemistry, "John Karakash is Lehigh, a hard-working engineer, teacher, and dean, but also a philosopher, visionary and humanist."

The College of Engineering and Physical Sciences consists of eight departments: chemical engineering, chemistry or biochemistry, civil engineering, fundamental science, electrical engineering or computer engineering, industrial engineering, mechanical engineering and mechanics, metallurgy and materials science, and physics. As of Fall, 1980, half of all Lehigh undergraduates were enrolled in the college.

Describing Lehigh philosophy, President Deming Lewis has said, "Through exposure in the major area of interest, the student is required to develop a considerable degree of expertise in the chosen field. This is combined with subject requirements covering a spectrum of subjects in a meaningful way at a minimum level."

In keeping with this belief, all students in the college are expected to complete specified sequences of courses in the physical sciences — with other electives available for related courses in natural sciences. The General Studies program, however, is designed to enable students to range widely or to delve deeply into the humanities or the social sciences with the purpose of exploring the value systems, assumptions, and methodologies contained in these areas.

In addition, students pursuing a bachelor of science degree program in the college can, if they so choose, organize their general studies program to achieve the equivalent of a "minor" in any one of the established areas in the humanities or social sciences.

Karakash expresses college philosophy as follows, "Lehigh does not train engineers; it educates students through engineering."

Engineers Meet Success

by Tony Pinnie

The 1980 football season was indeed one to be remembered as the Engineers finished with an undefeated 9-0-2 record and as the undisputed #1 ranked team in the 1-AA division. The undefeated season, only the second in school history, earned the engineers the ECAC division 1-AA team-of-the-year award, yet another post season playoff bid, and the Lambert Cup, symbolic of eastern supremacy for medium-sized colleges.

"This team really came of age," said Head Coach John Whitehead. "We had a lot of quality individuals and they grew better and better with each game."

The Engineers opened the season with an untested Quarterback in Junior Larry Michalski, and some questioned his ability to lead the squad. He quickly silenced all his critics in the opening game at Maine as he passed for 234 yards and three T.D.'s in a 37-6 victory. Senior wide receiver Mark Yeager snared seven of those tosses and this proved to be a foreshadowing of events to come as the Michalski-Yeager connection proved to be unstoppable throughout the season.

The Engineers hosted Colgate the following week and had to rally for a 17-17 tie. Yeager pulled in 10 Michalski passes, including one for a score, and the swarming Lehigh defense halted the high-powered Red Raider offense.

The Penn Quakers were the Engineers next victim as reserve fullback Greg Marion piled up 113 yards rushing to pace the team to a 35-6 trouncing. The defense was awesome, led by middle linebacker Pete Mercuri, who recorded 12 tackles and blocked an extra point and a field goal attempt.

Perhaps the most exciting moment for the Engineers occurred only four weeks into the 1980 season. The Delaware Blue Hens travelled to Taylor Stadium, and if one believed what their Head Coach Tubby Raymond was telling the newspapers, the game was going to be a breeze for Delaware. Fueled by this lack of respect, the Engineers battled the Blue Hens to the wire, and with only 17 seconds in the game and the score tied at 20-20, Michalski uncorked a 33 yard scoring strike to Yeager to secure the 27-20 victory and send the Blue Chickens back to Newark.

The team visited West Point to take on Army, a team that posed the biggest threat to the Engineers unbeaten record. With the Engineers leading 24-21 and only one second on the clock, Army's Dave Aucoin booted a 52 yard field goal to lift the Cadets to a tie. The Cadets should have never been allowed to run the last play due to an error by the official, and the ECAC rules committee admitted to the mistake. However, nothing could be done about the score and the tie remained intact.

The squad took their 3-0-2 record down South the following week and rebounded with a 49-14 rout over Davidson. Michalski to Yeager was the order of the day as Yeager hauled in seven passes for 178 yards and the first three Engineer scores. The defense was true to form and contributed to the point total on a 34 yard interception return by defensive back Charlie Marck.

The Bucknell Bisons, always a formidable foe for the Engineers, visited a rain-soaked Taylor Stadium on the sixth week of the season and were promptly shut out 13-0. Yeager managed to haul in another Michalski pass for a score but it was the defense that stood out on this Saturday as they forced the Bisons to fumble eight times.

The Engineers extended their record to 6-0-2 with a 31-14 mauling of James Madison University as halfback Joe Rabuck and Jimmy Evanko scored two touchdowns apiece and Ted Iobst boomed a 43 yard field goal. The team continued their relentless drive towards an undefeated season the following week with a 23-10 victory over Rhode Island with Michalski and Yeager hooking up for another score, Steve Plucinsky running for two scores and Ted Iobst tying a school record with a 47 yard field goal. Northeastern felt the wrath of the Engineers in a 42-19 drubbing a week later. A superb effort by the offensive line helped running backs John Ahsler, Steve Plucinsky and Jim Evanko all gain 100 yards rushing.

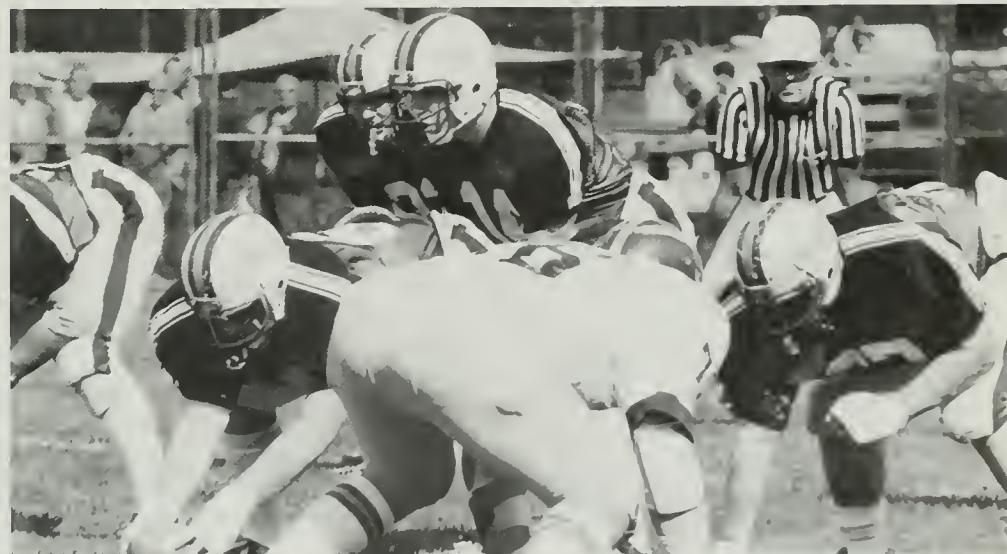

This left only Lafayette in the path of the unblemished season for the squad. The Engineers showed the Leopards why they were voted the top team in the nation and went on to an easy 32-0 rout and an undefeated season. So dominant was the defense that defensive end and Co-Captain Mike Crowe was voted the games most valuable player for his outstanding effort. This was only the second time in the history of the award that a defensive player was picked.

With a #1 ranking secured and the Lambert Cup safely wrested from the University of Delaware, the Engineers hosted the opening round of the playoffs against old nemesis Eastern Kentucky. The Colonels, who defeated the Engineers in the 1-AA final last season, continued their jinx over the Brown and White and took a close 23-20 win in the nationally televised game. Lehigh tight end Vince Rogusky, who caught six passes for 96 yards, was voted the ABC player of the game.

Despite the disappointing loss at the seasons end, many Engineer players received individual honors. Linebacker Bruce Rarig concluded a brilliant four year career and earned Kodak Coaches and Associated Press First-Team All-American honors. Yeager was selected as a Kodak coaches third team all-american. In addition, Yeager, Rarig, Michalski, Crowe, Marck, Iobst, Larry Miksiewicz and Rich Titus were all selected to the all-ECAC squad. Crowe and Yeager were also selected as the team co-captains for the year by their fellow teammates.

All in all, it was a memorable season indeed.

The harriers plodded through a rebuilding season with a record of 3-8. The team, which was lead by sophomore co-captains Bruce Flynn and David Thompson, consisted mainly of freshmen and sophomores with only one senior Mike Murray. The highlight of the season came when Lehigh scrambled past Lafayette to end the season with a win. Coach John Covert is looking forward to a more successful season next year with the return of all of his top runners.

The Lehigh volleyball team had a good season this year. Although plagued by injuries the team managed to have a winning season led by co-captains and MVPs Karen Talbert and Cheryl Paul. Under the new direction of Coach Karen Adams, the Lehigh Spikers ended on a good note beating arch rival Lafayette. As many players are returning next year, Coach Adams looks forward to another victorious season.

Field Hockey

The field hockey team traveled to Edwardsville Illinois this year for the national tournament and finished in the top 15 teams. Lehigh qualified for nationals by soundly beating the Lafayette team in regionals at Loyola College in Maryland.

Senior captain Kim Powell and MVP Cindy Moon led the engineer defense, while freshman Julia Kim and juniors Ann Hackenberg and Judy Weir sparked the attack. Goalie Brenda Sirors came back to complete another outstanding season, after missing the first nine games due to a broken leg. The team, coached by Judy Turner, finished the season at 6-9-4.

Armed with several veteran players and some high hopes, Coach Manny Tavormina's soccer team ventured south to open their season against the 12th ranked Old Dominion Monarchs in Norfolk, Va.

The Engineers rallied from a two-goal deficit in the second half only to see their upset hopes dissipate when ODU scored the game-winning goal with only 2:42 left to play.

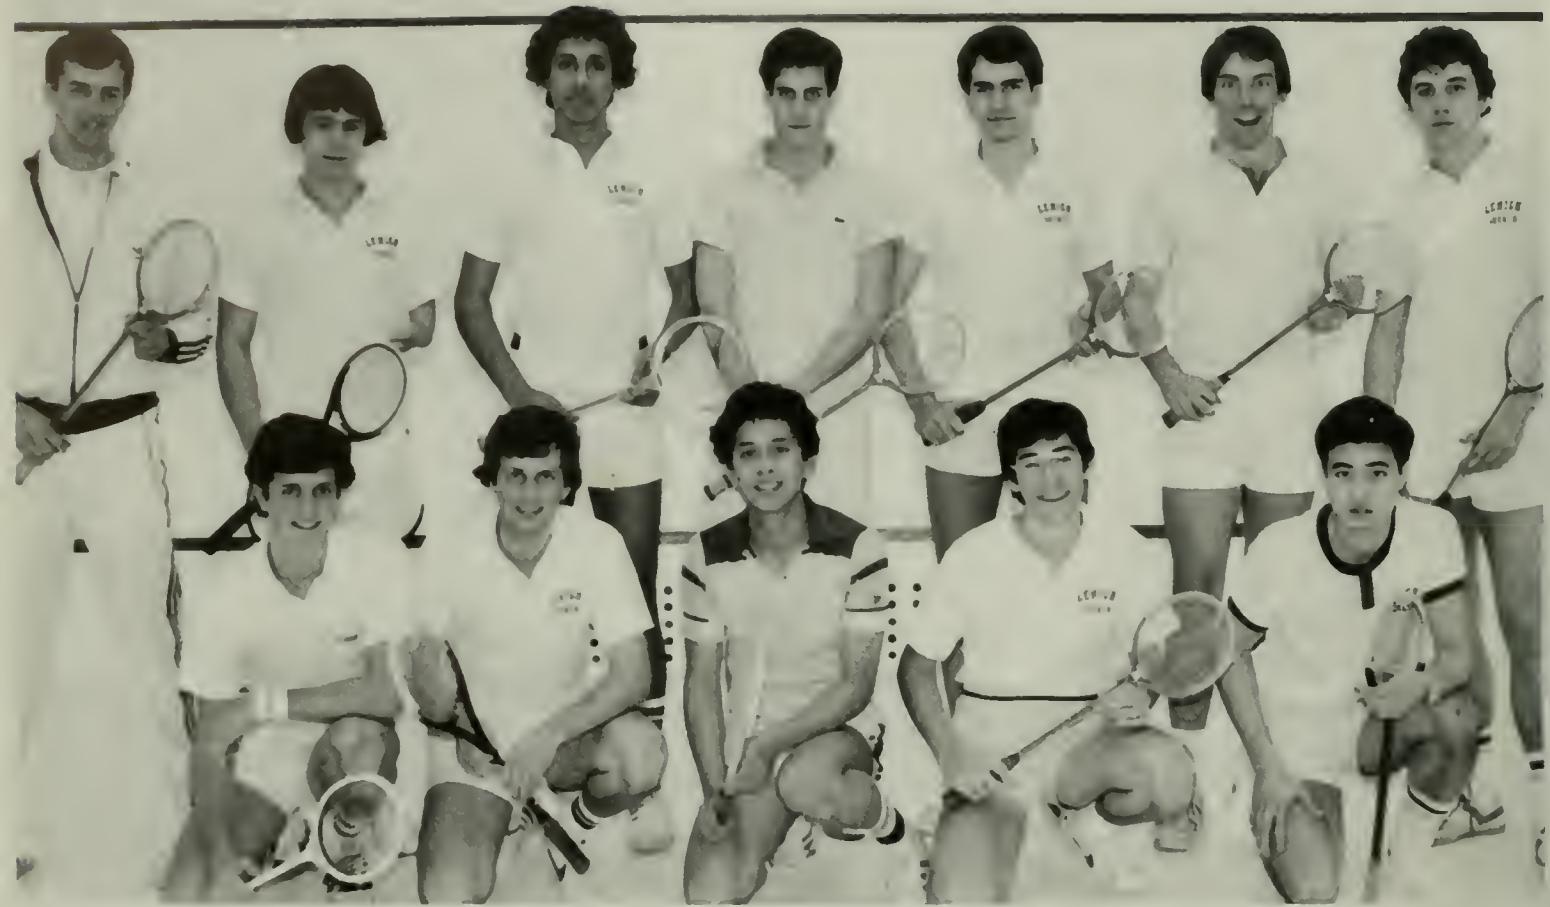

The booters dropped three more contests, before they were able to get their first win. Swarthmore was the Engineers' initial victim and Lehigh followed with wins over LaSalle and Delaware. The Engineers were now 3-4 and the defense, without Belshaw, had only given up one goal in the three victories.

But the Engineers could never draw any closer to the .500 mark, losing an overtime game to Rider and being upset in the season finale by Bucknell, 1-0.

Junior co-captain Bob Buckheit proved once again that he was one of the finest players in the East. Buckheit was the second-leading scorer in the East Coast Conference and also the runner-up for the ECC West Most Valuable Player.

Kevin Remley, a freshman forward, topped Buckheit in scoring and was also named to the all-conference squad.

With these three players back, along with several strong underclassmen, the Engineers will be looking for the successful season which has eluded them for the last two years.

The squash team completed its finest season ever with a 9-10 record. The team was lead by senior co-captains Todd Stanier and Bruce Rankin along with MVP Doug McLeod. The Highlights of the season included an upset of 12th ranked MIT then a win over arch-rival Franklin and Marshall for the first time. Coach Peter Sleeman should have a strong team next season with the return of freshman standouts Pao Sarasin and Brad Hunsaker along with upperclassmen Ismail Mahmud and John McClay.

Riflery

Two teams were undefeated during their regular seasons. Both teams were deadly on their respective playing fields. One team was on National Television while the other was entrenched in the basement of Lamberton Hall.

Despite the obscurity associated with the rifle team, they continued their winning ways with an 8-0 record. The team was led by senior co-captain and MVP Gordon Jonas and co-captain Dave Bauer. Prospects for next season look just as bright with most of the team returning.

The stickmen of Lehigh's ice hockey team raised their record to 9-9 during this year's campaign. Key wins came over Delaware (twice), Ramapo and rival Lafayette. The Defense was anchored by goalie Paul Rinaldi, also defending Lehigh's goal were Bowdoin transfer Phil Molinaro and junior college transfer Carl Henzelman. Henzelman played well all season despite a nagging injury suffered in an early season scrimmage. The team's future looks bright with most of coach Steve Penman's squad returning next season.

The women's basketball team, led by captains D. Leitmer and M. Zdrofcoff finished a disappointing 80-81 season, with a 7-15 record.

There were bright spots in the season however, with impressive victories over F&M, Bloomsburg, Allen College, and a one-point decision over Penn.

Lehigh men and women swim teams never had a dull moment this season. The men's team finished with an impressive 8-2 record, due to good depth and strong underclass relays. The women's team finished with a 6-4 record.

Gary Angyal won 2 awards, Lehigh Long Distance Trophy awarded to most improved distance swimmer and James C. Gravany Memorial Trophy awarded to a freshman scoring the most points. Randy Beals won the Peter J. Morrissey Memorial Trophy to most outstanding member of the men's varsity squad. Also, Susan Andrews won the women's award for the most outstanding member of women's varsity squad.

(mngr.), R. Bellaran; ROW 3: Thayer Turner (coach), M. Frick, T. Hensler, J. Turner, C. Kilrain, P. Brown, D. Keiser, B. Dudek, G. Leeman (asst. coach).

After taking on a long and challenging schedule, the grapplers were able to retain their string of consecutive winning seasons, this being the 29th. Tough setbacks came at the hands of Iowa, Wisconsin, Iowa State, and Syracuse during the regular season, but they were able to finish up with a 10-4 record.

The EIWA tournament, at Princeton proved to be somewhat of a disappointment as Lehigh gave up first place to Syracuse, but was able to finish a strong second. Winners of EIWA crowns included: Tom Husted at 126, Daryl Burley at 134, and Colin Kilrain at 177.

Bobby Weaver was runner up at 118, Tom Bold was fourth at 142, Tom Sloand went at 150 and placed fifth, Jim Reilly was fourth at 158, Jeff Turner finished third at 167, and Tom Henseler was sixth at 190.

Burley, Kilrain, Husted, Weaver, Turner and Reilly all qualified for the NCAA's, Reilly as the Coaches' "Wild Card" selection. With three place winners, Burley second at 134, Kilrain third at 177 and Reilly seventh at 158 Lehigh captured fifth in the NCAA tournament at Princeton.

The Engineers were the top eastern team finishing ahead of Penn State and Syracuse. The team was in the top five for the fourth time in the last seven years.

Leading the team this year were co-captains Kilrain and Burley who were re-elected to those posts for the 1981-82 campaign. Kilrain and Burley, who both went through the regular season unbeaten, each won their third EIWA crowns and will have a chance next year to become the fifth (and maybe sixth) four-time Eastern Champs.

The Lehigh Home Club Trophy to the best wrestler on the varsity squad went to Daryl Burley. The George Feuerbach Memorial Trophy to the most outstanding member of the varsity squad went to Colin Kilrain and the Roy A Lewis Trophy to the most outstanding freshman wrestler went to Damian Butler.

The Engineer basketball team enjoyed its finest season in 64 years by posting a 14-12 record in 1980-81.

The fourteen wins are the second most in school history, behind the 1916-1917 club which won fifteen of its nineteen games. It was also the first winning season for the Engineers since 1967.

Senior forward Kevin Riley led the club in scoring, was second in rebounding, and was voted Most Valuable Player. Riley's fifteen-foot banker at the buzzer against Bucknell gave the Engineers a one-point win which clinched a winning season.

But the Engineers did not depend on just one player. Coach Brian Hill effectively used eight players throughout the season, and this depth was the key for the successful year.

Seniors Mike Power, Paul Hanks, Rick Coppola and Jeff Campisi, junior Charles Blue, and sophomores Brian Collins and Fred Ketcho all contributed greatly for the Engineers.

With Blue, Collins and Ketcho returning along with a strong JV squad and some blue-chip freshmen, Hill has hopes of repeating the winning efforts of 1981.

The track team campaigned successfully indoors and outdoors compiling a combined record of 14-4. The indoor 31 meet win streak, spanning four seasons, was snapped by Temple. Despite the loss the team continued to perform well winning their last three meets. The squad was supported by their strength in the field events. Two members of the team won individual titles at the East Coast Conference Championships where Lehigh placed fifth. Rusty Fulford won the long jump, while Larry Mercadante captured the triple jump. With a strong field squad returning and a strengthened track squad, prospects for next season look promising.

Men's tennis rolled to a outstanding 15-7 season. The Engineers were led by MVP Keith Shramko and captain Dan Dalton. Shramko compiled the best singles record, winning 17 out of 22 matches. Dalton was the team leader in matches won, with a total of 30, against 14 losses. Junior Kevin Kopp and freshman Mark Nesbit played a vital role in this years effort, with Kopp winning the #6 E.C.C. championship and Nesbit winning key matches all year. Coach Brad Wyckoff can look for an ever better record next year, as the team losses only one starter.

The Lehigh baseball team was very successful this year as their record was 14-13. The pitching staff, considered to be a major question mark at the beginning of the season, held up quite well against such tough competition as Georgia Southern (ranked 9th in the nation), American University, Lafayette and Bucknell. Excellent performances were turned in by Jeff Sperring, who beat Georgia Southern; Steve Paccico and John Patten, two solid freshmen and Mitch Fox, who won the first three games he pitched.

The Engineers began their season with a 5-1 record on their southern trip, but began to slide during the next few weeks. The team turned the season around by sweeping Bucknell in a doubleheader and winning their next six games in a row. Hitting was rarely a problem for the Engineers, with senior co-captain Roger Bumgardner and Chris Nagle supplying most of the power. They combined for 12 home runs while senior Chris Dax lead the team in hitting with a .370 average. Senior Del Markward started quickly, batting well over .500 during the southern swing. But he, along with Dax, was hampered with serious injuries which limited his play. Freshman Mike Matto turned in a fine season at third base with excellent defensive plays combined with clutch hitting. He will be returning next season with a team of young players hoping to better this years record.

The coming of spring brought changes for the 1981 softball team. Guided by a new head coach, Maureen Fredrick, the team took their first southern trip and returned with a 4-1 record. They approached the season with much psych and determination as they were led by co-captains, Sonia Hiester and Anastasia Yuelys. On the field heroics were performed by sophomore Mary Jo McHugh who batted .500 and pitcher Hiester who received the MVP award.

After training in Boca Raton, Florida over spring break, the Engineers went on to complete a 10-4 season, losing to top ranked teams Ursinus, West Chester, Delaware, and Temple.

Scoring was led by co-captains Bonnie Lewis with 51 goals and Kim Powell with 34. A tough defense was sparked by Nancy Lehrhaupt, Sandy McMenamin, and goalie Brenda Sirois.

The men's lacrosse team finished another disappointing season this spring with a record of 3-10. In spite of the losing record, the team did have outstanding performances by several key players. Senior John Robbins did an excellent job as goalie, as did Keith Haarmann on the field.

Despite losing several key seniors this year, the team does have some excellent potential from underclassmen and next spring a much improved record is expected.

Freshman Orientation

Fall

... Rush Rush Rush Rush ...

Rush begins with fraternities having open house during the last three weekends of September. Rush dinners follow soon after, offering potential rushees a chance to meet brothers.

Pubnights and special events like Monday Night Football, concerts, and athletic games help brothers and rushees decide if they fit each other's lifestyle.

The giving out of a prebid indicates a house has asked a rushee to become a future brother. On Bid Day, two weeks into the spring semester, the rushee chooses which house he wants to pledge.

Pledging

Pledging is more than simply being ordered around by one's fraternity brothers. Pledge projects often include improvements to the house while pledge trips are a good way to meet people from other chapters.

The pledge class is usually responsible for constructing the bed for the bed race and designing a banner for Lafayette weekend. Lineups, cleanups, and quizzes about the fraternity are regular features of pledging.

The brothers-to-be are instructed on the ideals of the fraternity by the pledge marshall. Hell Week signals the transition from low life to brother status.

OKTOBERFEST

The first annual "Oktoberfest," jointly organized by the Student Activities Council, the Residence Halls Council, and the Interfraternity Council, raised $750 for the Bethlehem YMCA. Almost 2000 students and faculty members drank beer and listened to german music provided by a live band. Other attractions included gambling booths and the "Le Compane" dancers.

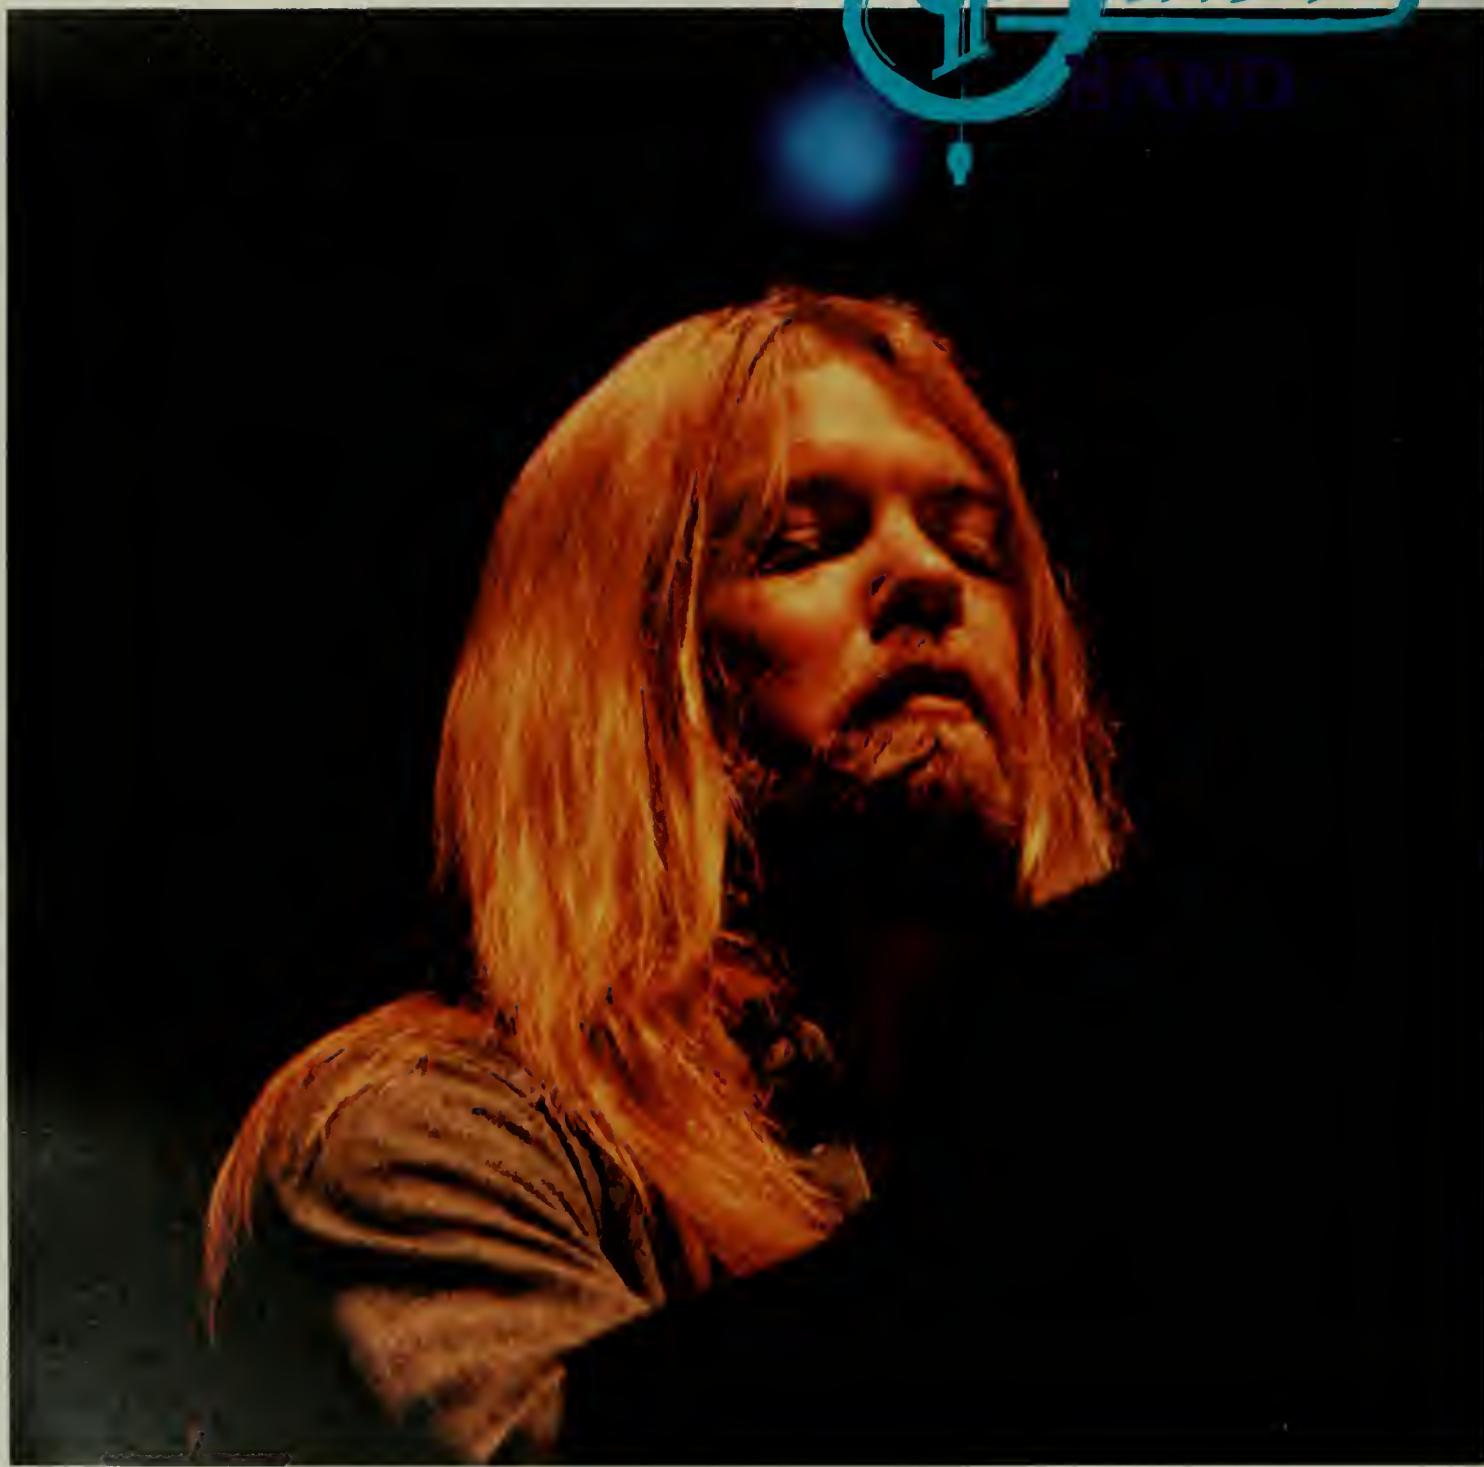

The event proved that major campus organizations could work together successfully. "Considering that this was the first year for such an event, it went off much better than we could have hoped," said Del Markward, IFC president, "I expect that there will be another Oktoberfest." Future improvements may include more booths and better lighting.

SAC Presents

"In the past, the SAC has had a bad image, but this year all officers are new, hardworking, and well aware of last year's image problems," declared SAC President Pete Fioretti at the beginning of the fall semester, "within the next few weeks, I don't think we'll have any image problems." By working with several agents and promoters, the SAC hopes to sponsor a wide range of concerts. However, Fioretti deemed the $16,000 budget insufficient.

Beatlemania was the first concert of the fall semester. Although synchronization problems marred the video slide and movie presentation, the mood of the 1960's was successfully recaptured for a few hours.

Marshall Tucker was next in the Stabler Arena. Their brand of Southern rock included Tony Caldwell on guitar, Jerry Eubanks on electric flute, Franklin Wilkie on bass, and vocalist Doug Grey.

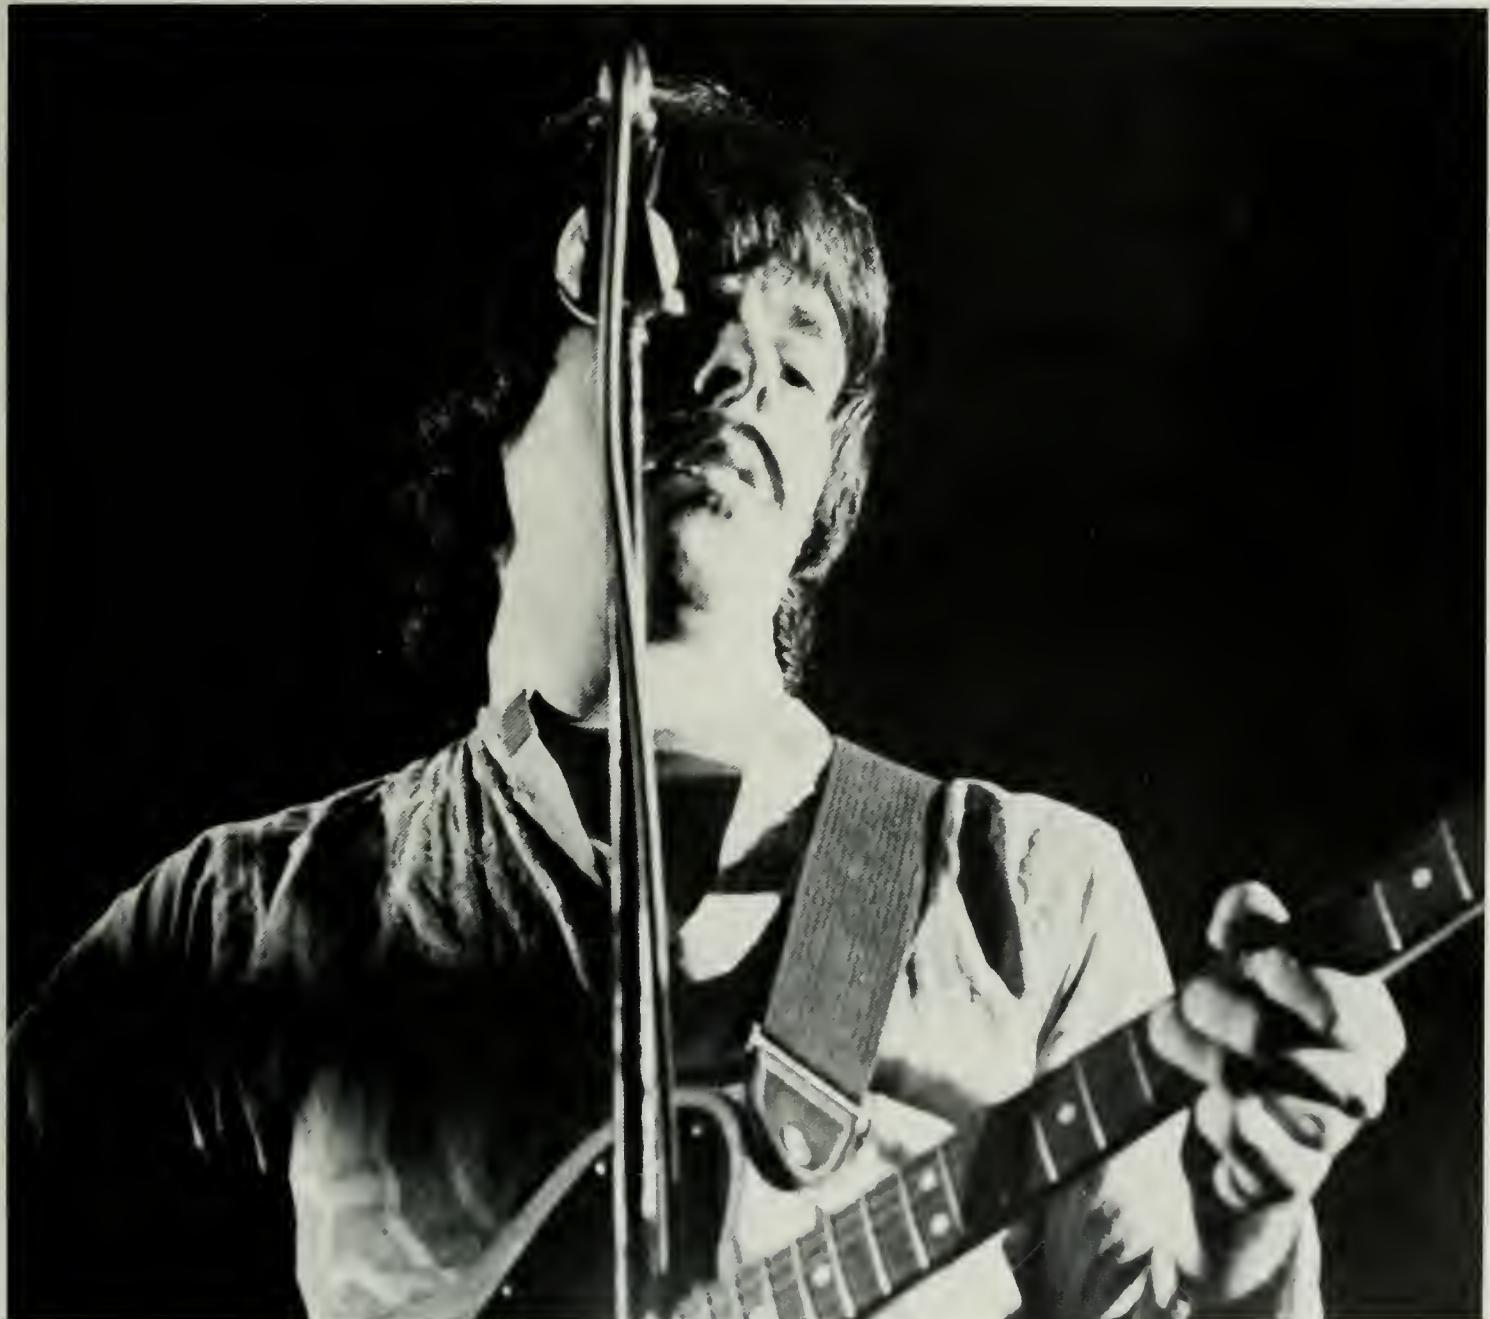

Molly Hatchet's six members travelled to Bethlehem from Jacksonville, Florida. Their presentation consisted of seventeen rousing songs.

Yes combined selections from their current album with songs from earlier in the group's twelve year history. Bassist Chris Squire was the sole remaining member from the original line-up.

Problems with the sound equipment caused Rossington Collins concert to be delayed nearly four hours. Theirs was the last SAC presentation of 1980.

The management of Stabler requires the SAC to work with a promoter as insurance against financial losses and damage. However, SAC officers would like to choose when they want to use a promoter. Nevertheless, Concert Chairman Fred Schaufeld said, "In spite of our differences, the SAC and the management of Stabler have managed to develop and maintain a very close working relationship. This is for the betterment of student activities."

Lafayette Weekend

The Election of 1980

Promising to slash the budget, toughen foreign policy, and "make America great again," Ronald Reagan became the 40th president of the United States. The former Governor of California swept the electoral college but barely gained a majority of the popular vote.

Finding the problems of Iran, Billy, and the economy insurmountable from the Rose Garden, Democratic incumbent Jimmy Carter took his campaign on the road. However, it was too little too late. Except for his home state of Georgia, Carter lost all of the "New South"—formerly the heart of his support.

Analysts claim that blacks were the only group that continued their 1976 support of the Georgian. Carter's biggest win was in the predominantly black District of Columbia where he received 74.9 percent of the vote.

Conservative political action committees like Jerry Falwell's Moral Majority raised funds for Reagan and other Washington newcomers. These groups succeeded in ousting senatorial stalwarts, including Birch Bayh and 1972 Presidential candidate George McGovern, who rated low on conservative scorecards.

Big business initially backed former Governor of Texas John Connally — who had the largest endowment in the presidential campaign. When Connally dropped out of the race, Kemp-Roth tax cut supporter Reagan received the big business support.

Officially, the AFL-CIO and other unions were behind the incumbent. However, many rank-and-file members, believing supply-side economics would cure inflation and unemployment, boosted Reagan support.

Illinois congressman John Anderson, Libertarian Ed Clark, and Barry Commoner of the Consumer Party also ran for President. Anderson captured 7% of the electorate, thus qualifying for federal matching funds. However, Anderson's candidacy affected the election results less than might have been expected.

Clark found strong support on campus, in spirit if not in numbers at Grace Hall, New Republic editor William Buckley was questioned about Clark. Buckley said he would wholeheartedly support Clark if not for his wanting to "dismantle the Pentagon." University Libertarians, responding in the Brown and White, said Clark was for efficiency in the military.

Anderson also appeared at the University, calling for sacrifice and conservation as the key to economic recovery. His speech at Stabler Arena drew national press attention and was broadcast by WLVR, the campus radio station.

The Lehigh College Republicans were embarrassed earlier in the year after they announced a three way debate featuring Anderson, Bush, and Reagan. Claiming that there would also be keynote addresses by other major Republicans, the club invited 40 major East Coast Universities to Stabler Arena.

However, area congressman Don Ritter turned out to be the only major political figure in attendance. Only 150 people saw the minor surrogates who appeared for two out of the three announced candidates. The club found itself discredited and in debt.

Despite the fiasco, the College Republicans received funds from the University, as did the Democrat Club under Lehigh's nonpartisanship rules. The money for the Democrats is on account until the club finds an acceptable manner in which to use it. The Lehigh Democrats seem to exist primarily on paper.

Several students and Deans who supported Reagan were rewarded for their efforts with invitations to Inauguration Day festivities. The overseer of these Reagan supporters was Marc Holtzman, a Lehigh Undergraduate who took a year off to serve as a top Reagan campaign coordinator in Pennsylvania. Holtzman was also an aide at the Republican Convention and second in command of Inauguration Day activities.

Forum XI held a mock election prior to the actual voting. Reagan won easily with Anderson coming in second and Carter a close third.

Day After Day

There were those days when the thought of walking uphill at the end of class made one want to call a cab, every homework assignment had the effect of a sleeping pill, and even the canines on campus seemed to be dreaming of the summer.

For the Engineer gridders, the partly sunny afternoon of December 13 was the culmination of a long, hard season; a season which ended without a loss.

The 9-0-2 Engineers, unbeaten for the first time since 1950, advanced to the Division 1-AA football playoffs for the second consecutive year. Rival Eastern Kentucky University was the opponent again, but this time the two teams would square off in the friendly confines of Taylor Stadium.

The first half ended in a 13-13 tie, as senior Ted Iobst connected on field goals of 47 and 38 yards, the first setting an Engineer record. The Lehigh touchdown came on a five yard pass from Junior quarterback Larry Michalski to junior Paul Anastasio.

Eastern Kentucky tied the game with just 24 seconds left in the first half, when running back Alvin Miller plowed in from the one-yard line.

The 11,500 faithful, many of them students who decided to put aside the chores of finals to scream themselves hoarse, waited in anticipation as the most important 30 minutes of the season were about to begin.

An Eastern Kentucky touchdown and field goal in the third quarter put the gridders behind, but with 8:50 left Michalski connected with senior running back Vince Rogusky on a 10-yard pass over the middle. Lobst converted the extra point to make the score 23-20.

The last eight minutes were probably the most hard-hitting of the season, as Lehigh fought desperately for a game tying field goal or a winning touchdown.

"Remember Delaware" yelled the band members, remember reminding the crowd of Michalski's last second pass to senior Mark Yeager which preserved the undefeated season.

Then, when senior linebacker Bruce Rarig jarred Miller with a bone crunching tackle (leaving Miller's knees wobbling), to almost cause a fumble, it looked like the Engineers might pull off another last second triumph. Dreams of California were alive again.

But the clock ran out before that bit of glory was achieved, a disappointment for everyone involved with the Lehigh football program, but hardly a blemish in light of the first undefeated season in thirty years.

Officer injured in brawl with over 100 students

By JENNIFER WILSON
A riot involving 100-200 University students erupted after yesterday's Campus Patrol, leaving one University police officer injured. Several University students were arrested as well in conjunction with other post-Crawfurd disturbance. The injured officer was kicked in the head, tried to appear as he was assault of fellow officers.

Student guilty in rehearing of Sigma Phi

An individual member of the Sigma Phi Society who stepped forward and assumed responsibility for the attack and injury to a University police officer during January has been found guilty in a rehearing of the case.

The rehearing, which was held during a hearing session at the Student Committee on Academic Affairs, resulted in a guilty finding for the individual from Sigma Phi who attacked the officer. The individual claimed sole responsibility for the attack and was sentenced to a year's probation on a violation of the university's code of conduct.

Hearing set for Sigma Phi fraternity charged

The room was padlocked in June until a method of returning the items was worked out. Quay said the most valuable items found were three skeletons, presumably taken from the biology department. Williams took several thousand dollars.

A large amount of fraternity property was recovered by the University's chapter of "Sigma Phi," the fraternity's chapter.

"I found guilty," Quay said. "The recognition by the University's withdrawal of the house on probation." The theft charge brought against Sigma Phi carries a maximum punishment of expulsion or suspension when applied to individuals. Quay noted the house as a whole. No individual charges have been filed.

Campbell police "stumbled" across the cache while responding to an alarm from the house's automatic system. The door to the chapter room was open and when the police went to close it, they found the room filled with stolen goods. The University, Lehigh, fraternal organizations, the U.S. Postal Service, the postal service and others, according to a letter Quay sent to Andy Hospodar, 31, president of Sigma Phi.

Scandals on Campus

The 1980-81 academic year was punctuated by startling — even shocking — news events.

In September, 1980, Delta Tau Delta Fraternity was brought before the University Disciplinary Committee in connection with a wet-T-shirt contest sponsored by the fraternity during Greek Week 1980. Thirty-five faculty members critical of the event had sent a letter to Dean of Students William Quay in May.

Delta Tau Delta was found guilty by the University Disciplinary Committee. However, concluding that the fraternity had "violated no duly enacted rule" although it did "engage in activity that appears patently offensive to significant sectors of the University," the Faculty Appeal Committee reversed the Disciplinary Committee decision and cleared the house of all charges.

Sigma Phi fraternity also came before the Disciplinary Committee in September. In June, while responding to an alarm set off by the fraternity's automatic system, campus police had discovered several thousand dollars worth of stolen items in the chapter room. The articles had been taken from other fraternities, the University, the city of Bethlehem, and the postal service.

Theft charges were brought against the house as a whole.

The fraternity was found guilty of multiple thefts of property, retention of stolen property, and corporately pursuing and condoning the practice of theft and retention of stolen property. Full University probation for the entire 1980-81 academic year was the sentence.

Sigma Phi was ordered to return all the property and pay for any damage. The house was given until May 1, 1981, to report back to the Disciplinary Committee with reasons why the chapter should continue. Failure to meet any of these requirements would result in dissolution of the chapter.

Sigma Phi came before the Discipline Committee again in March. The committee found the entire house guilty of the January theft of a half-keg from Phi Delta Theta and decided to recommend to the reviewing board that Sigma Phi be dissolved.

In April, an individual member of Sigma Phi stepped forward and assumed responsibility for the theft. However, the committee did not withdraw the recommendation to dissolve since "the chapter participated in trying to conceal the truth" by not singling out an individual during March's hearing.

In February, the Brown and White was itself the subject of a front page story. More than $5000 had been found missing from its account.

Early in the spring semester, the new head of Journalism, Robert Sullivan, determined that proper accounting and bookkeeping records had not been maintained during the fall semester. Former head of Journalism, Joe McFadden, then examined cancelled checks to discover invalid signatures on several.

Apparently, a student with access to the Brown and White checkbook had written checks on the paper's account without authorization by forging at least one signature. The checkbook had not been locked in a safe place. Sullivan then consulted Dean Quay who requested an audit.

The business manager of the Brown and White, who was involved in the embezzlement, paid back the money and left school with the understanding that the University would never give him a degree.

The alleged rape on April 12 of a 19-year-old Muhlenberg College student led to the arrest of thirteen University students and one non-University student. Eleven of the University students were Delta Tau Delta brothers — at whose fraternity house the incident reportedly occurred.

Two of those arrested, one a Delta Tau Delta brother, were charged with rape and criminal conspiracy to commit rape. They were released on $5000 bail. Another Delt was charged with indecent assault and criminal conspiracy to commit rape. He was released on $1000 bail. All of the others were charged with criminal conspiracy to commit rape and released on their own recognizance.

A preliminary hearing on May 11 determined whether a prima facie case had been established against each individual.

An ad hoc committee was formed to review the status of Delta Tau Delta and report back to President Lewis its recommendations concerning the future of the chapter at Lehigh.

The Campus Crawl on April 30 ended in a riot involving 100-200 University students — several of whom were arrested. One University police officer was injured in the brawl.

Disturbance was first created by a group of students demanding beer at Chi Phi. The fraternity had run out of beer and, upon hearing a window being broken, the president called campus police.

Police arrived at the house, warned the person identified as having broken the window and left. However, they were soon called back — to find that "a whole group of people . . . about 100-200 of them" had returned to Chi Phi.

Bill Gentzlinger, president of Chi Phi, said, "People were just abusing them (the police officers), throwing beers on them — there was nothing they could do."

"The kids were chanting "Kent State" and screaming any obscenity under the sun directed at your mother, your sister, your father, you name it," said officer Mark DiLuzio. "We attempted to leave the area, but the students were lying in front of the car and in the road."

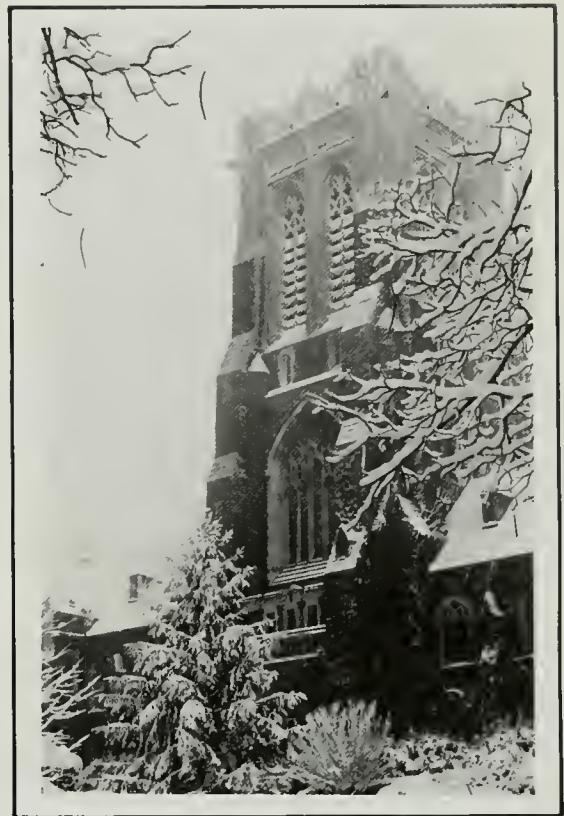

Students then assailed DiLuzio and his fellow officers Edward Shupp and Joseph Straka. Shupp was kicked in the eye and maced while attempting to apprehend one of the assailants.

Trouble was also caused at Sigma Alpha Mu by students who scaled the fraternity's fence in an attempt to get beer. In yet another incident, one student was arrested for open lewdness following a nude basketball game at Beta Theta Pi.

An emergency meeting of the Interfraternity Council was called on May 1 to discuss what Quay termed the "extremely serious and explosive" situation on the hill.

Friday and Saturday following the meeting went very smoothly. Chief of Campus Police Eugene Dax said it was the mildest Greek Weekend ever, adding that there was "total cooperation" from students, the Dean of Students Office, faculty and administration.

A Decade of Women at Lehigh

by Anne Fitzpatrick

In the fall of 1971, 128 women, the first ever to attend our traditionally all male university arrived on campus. Since then, things have never been the same.

The athletic department had no idea of the quality or quantity of women athletes that would come to Lehigh, according to William Leckonby, Director of Athletics.

Back then, there were three Varsity teams, swimming, tennis, and field hockey. But due to talent and interest, today we have all of those plus volleyball, basketball, lacrosse and softball. In addition, there are sports clubs for women in track and soccer.

"The women's sports program at Lehigh has come along remarkably well with the teams doing well against tough opponents much sooner than I had expected," said Leckonby.

For example the field hockey team made it to nationals this year and last. The lacrosse team went to nationals this year and came in second only losing to Delaware.

The women's sports program is not the only thing that has expanded.

"Back in '71 when we were first admitting women we planned on having no sororities; you can see how wrong we were," said Samuel Missimer, Director of Admissions.

Today we have three established sororities; Alpha Gamma Delta, Gamma Phi Beta, and Alpha Phi — with a fourth one on the way.

The University Panhellenic Council voted to expand the sorority system because of the number of women interested in becoming involved, according to Larry Phillipi, assistant to the dean of students.

Spring rush of 1981 left fifty girls who had wanted to pledge without bids. The year before there were thirty rejections.

The need for another sorority was recognized but the problem still remained of which one to get. The Sorority Expansion Committee, comprised of three representatives from each existing sorority and Phillipi dealt with this job.

The committee studied the alumnae chapters, scholarship programs, financial status, membership/chapter development, and national organization of each sorority that showed an interest in colonizing at Lehigh.

There final decision can not be disclosed because "it's not official yet," said Phillipi. But, "hopefully it will colonize by the fall of 1981," he added. Where to house the new sorority is still being decided. "Although it is not really our responsibility to find housing for the sorority, we will help," said Phillipi.

Interestingly enough, according to Phillipi, the University could actually support the addition of two new sororities. "However it would be unwise to bring in two new ones at the same time," said Phillipi.

Women have excelled in sports, sororities, and in terms of involvement and activities, according to assistant Dean of Students Muriel Whitcomb.

For example, Eileen Canzian was the first woman Brown and White editor back in 1977. She was not the last. Janet Scagnelli, who was in the first graduating class of women, was vice-chairman of the Forum. She was not the last either.

These days, the Epitome always seems to have a woman editor, said Whitcomb. The SAC and LUV are predominantly staffed by women, too, added Whitcomb.

This year for the first time in Lehigh's history, the Bosey Reiter Leadership Cup, the most prestigious service award presented to an undergraduate, was presented to a woman — Phyllis Errico.

Academically, the women are consistently above the men, with their grade point average about a 10th of a point higher, said Whitcomb.

"Women at Lehigh are asserting themselves. They're visible, credible, and have a lot of respect. Doors aren't closed to them, there's nothing holding them back," said Whitcomb.

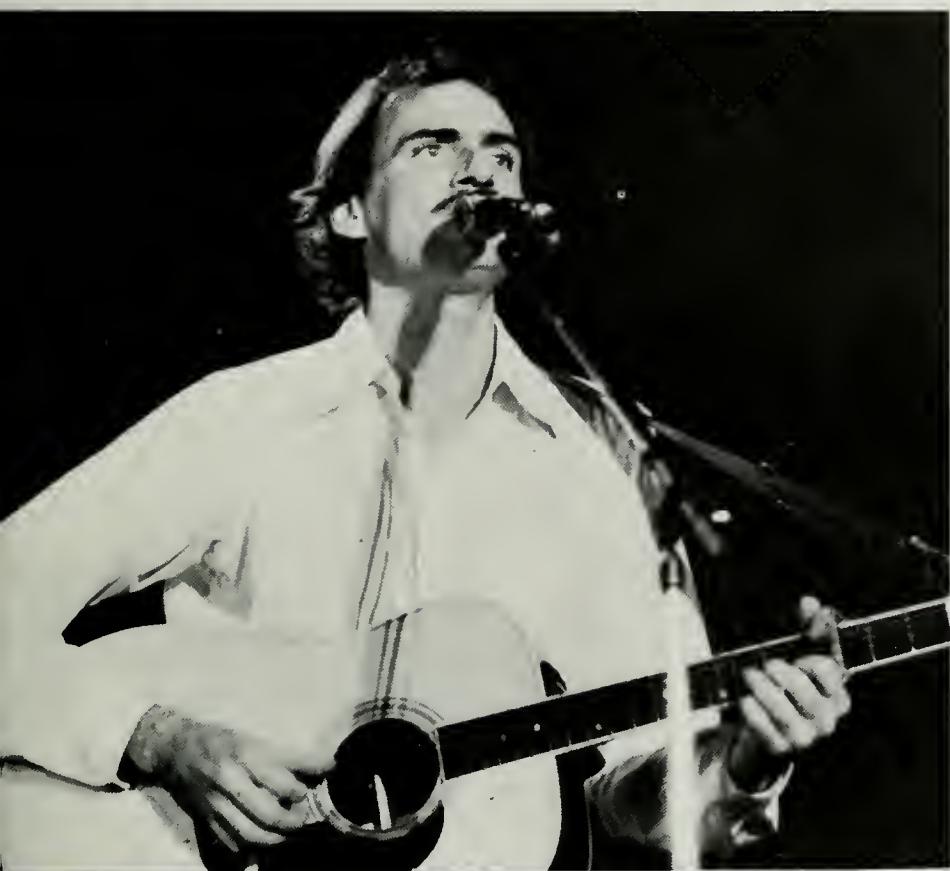

"They may be outnumbered, but they're not intimidated," Whitcomb claimed.

Looking back on the early days of Lehigh women, Missimer said he was amazed at how well women adjusted into the Lehigh lifestyle. "After a year or two, it was almost as if they'd been here forever," he said.

Rodney Dangerfield

Comedian Rodney Dangerfield spoke at Lehigh on January 27, bringing an almost sell-out crowd to its feet at Stabler Arena. After firing one-liners and "no respect" jokes at the crowd, the highlight of the evening was during an audience question and answer session. One observer asked Dangerfield how his health was to which he replied, "not so good. This morning I was doing nude push-ups and I didn't see the mousetrap!"

The first Hourglass — brainchild of the Social Alternatives Committee of Forum XI — was held in the University snack-bar from 8:30 p.m. to midnight on January 29. Nearly 400 people enjoyed the music of guitarist John Lee.

In addition to live entertainment provided by professionals and amateurs, the Hourglass features special additions to the regular snack bar menu. According to chairman Jeff Aibel, the Social Alternatives Committee is trying to "fill a need for additional programming" — not detract from other social events on campus.

"The crowd was very enthusiastic at one of the best alternatives to a pubnite offered on this campus in quite a while. The food was good and the service not bad, considering the newness of the idea and the event," said a Brown and White editorial.

"The main reasons for the success of the initial Hourglass, expected to be the first of a series presented twice a month, were advance planning and publicity by the ad-hoc Social Alternatives Committee and cooperation and assistance from the University Office of Auxiliary Services, the Dean of Students Office, the Dining Service, and the Student Activities Council," continued the editorial.

"But credit should also be given to those . . . who showed up Thursday . . . Without that support, the Hourglass would have failed, no matter how well planned it had been."

Improvements were made in the February, March, and April presentations of the Hourglass. Unpopular items were dropped from the menu following the first Hourglass. The waiter system was reevaluated when Food Services lost $400-$500 on the February Hourglass. Labor costs accounted for much of the deficit.

decision over Princeton's fourth-place finisher John Orr, while pinning Franklin and Marshall's Mike McMahon in the quarterfinals and pouncing Syracuse's third place finisher Iacovelli, 12-6, in the semifinals.

A tremendous tournament performance by unseeded 142-pound Engineer Tommy Bold ended on a sour note as he dropped a 10-4 rematch with Siegel in the consolation finals for third place. Siegel, who defeated Bold, 9-8, last week at Stabler Arena, jumped to an 8-1 lead, and allowed Bold four escapes in the duel.

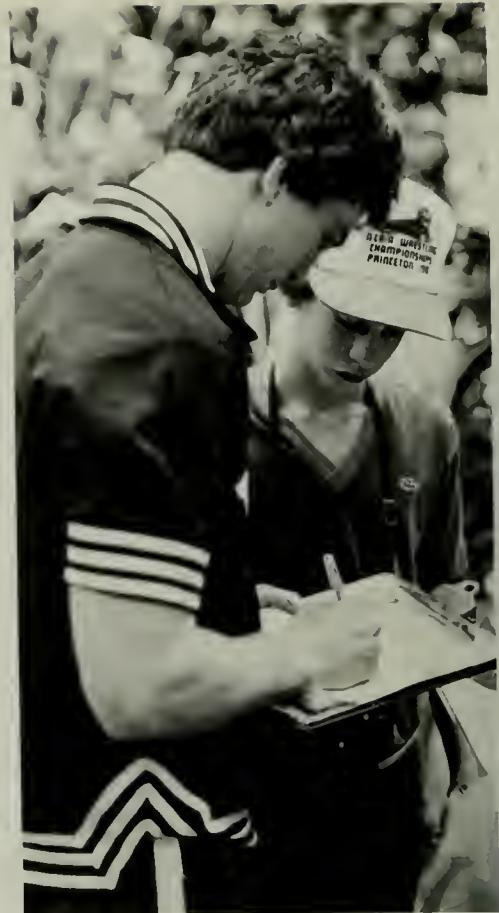

Engineer Tom Sloand, who wrestled at 126 earlier this year became known as "David" at 150 this weekend, manhandling his opponents and working his way to a fifth place finish.

In a big upset at 158-pounds, Engineer defending champ Reilly suffered through an injured groin and a 5-3 loss to Allen Washington of Yale and 6-3 consolation loss to Mike Rodgers of Navy en route to a fourth place finish. He was selected as a wild-card pick for the nationals along with Navy's 167-pounder John Reich.

In the 167-pound class whose first four seeds were knocked out early, including defending champion Reich, who placed fourth nationally last year, Turner almost worked his way to the finals, but fell victim to Army's Dave Hagg, 6-5, in the semis.

Colin Kilrain showed Eastern fans why he is one of the toughest 177-pounders in the country by cruising through the tourney.

After pinning his first two opponents, Kilrain seemed to have a bit of trouble with Princeton captain Jim Fraivillig, winning only 14-6, then disposing of defensive Midshipman Mark Phillips in the finals, 15-3.

Engineer Tom Hensler finished his Lehigh career in fine style finishing sixth at 190, a weight which may be a bit over Hensler's head.

Engineer heavyweight Drew Keiser won a close bout with Army's Larry Beisel in the opening round, 12-10, but dropped another slow match reminiscent of the one last week with Rotunda, the eventual winner, 8-4 in the quarter-final.

Orangemen end Engineers' hold on Easterns

by Larry Reisman

The Syracuse Orangemen of coach Ed Carlin crowned four individual champions Sunday night while dethroning the Engineers as Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association champs at Princeton University's Jadwin Gymnasium.

Syracuse qualified seven matmen, scoring 159.75 points to Lehigh's 134.50, and the Engineers qualified six, for the NCAA championships. Bob Weaver (second at 118), Tom Husted (first at 126), Darryl Burley (first at 134), Jim Reilly (fourth at 158), Jeff Turner (third at 167), and Colin Kilrain (first at 177) will make the trip for Lehigh.

In the first collegiate battle in history between two Olympians in the 118-pound finale, Gene Mills of Syracuse gave up an early takedown but responded with six near falls before finally nailing Weaver in 5:20.

Lehigh's Tom Husted nipped defending 118-pound champion Dale Mills of Syracuse, 11-10, in their semi-final bout before fronting Mark Palzer of Army, 14-5 in the finals of their 126-pound bout.

Husted's other two wins were by fall at 7:57 against Temple's Joe Duca and 7-3 against 1980, 126-pound runnerup, Alan Reto of East Stroudsburg.

At 134, Burley won his third consecutive championship as he ran a patented takedown clinic, racking up 11-two-pointers en route to a 24-10 victory over William and Mary's Billy Pincus, whose only previous loss this season was to Maryland's Todd Camel.

Concern about the number of handguns in the United States — 50 million at last count — was expressed anew following the death of John Lennon on December 8, 1980. The ex-Beatle was shot in front of his New York apartment house by Mark David Chapman — a loner who had not only idolized Lennon but masqueraded under his name. Lennon and Yoko Ono had just released "Double Fantasy" — their first work in eight years. The album's most popular single, "Starting Over," climbed the charts as the world mourned the musician.

On January 20, 1981, Ronald Reagan took the oath as 40th President of the United States, promising an "era of national renewal." Within minutes of his swearing-in, the 52 American hostages held in Iran were released after 444 days in captivity. They were welcomed back to the United States with cheers, tears, yellow ribbons and tributes. At a White House ceremony, President Reagan thanked the returning citizens "for making us proud to be Americans."

Farmers watched the skies all winter, hoping for rain that would end the severe drought and save the summer crops. A major storm across the country in February brought some immediate relief but no long term solutions to the serious problems of waste and pollution. Experts remained concerned that the rapid depletion of underground reserves of water would produce a crisis reminiscent of the energy shortage.

In February, before a joint session of Congress, the President unveiled a second "New Deal" aimed at the runaway growth of big government. Reagan claimed that his proposals — which included drastic cuts in taxes, spending, and regulation — could halve the inflation rate, increase economic growth, and result in a balanced budget. However, many questioned the ability of these untested theories to hold up in the real world — and worried about how the cuts would affect low income groups.

On March 30, John Warnock Hinckley Jr. fired six shots and injured four people — one of them the President of the United States. Reagan suffered a serious chest wound but kept his sense of humor throughout the ordeal. The assassination attempt raised questions about how well the President is protected and what more could be done. Once again, the handgun problem was discussed with Reagan maintaining his position against gun control.

Fifty-four hours after a delayed blast-off from Cape Canaveral, the space-shuttle Columbia made a flawless landing in the Mojave Desert. Americans were exhilarated by the reusable shuttle's trouble-free return to earth. Commander John Young's shuttle copilot, Navy Captain Robert Crippen, exclaimed, "We are really in the space business to stay."

Preppy Editor Chooses University 'Key' Preps

by Anne Fitzpatrick

"College should be the happiest eight years of your life," advised Lisa Birnbach, editor of the Official Preppy Handbook, who spoke in Packard Lab. Aud. April 15.

Wearing (of course) a turtleneck, Fair Isle sweater, kilt, red socks and clogs (the very ones pictured in the book), Birnbach explained why Lafayette is mentioned in the book while Lehigh isn't.

"Look, Lehigh, engineering is just not preppy, it's too practical," she said. "Besides you can't pick up women on logarithms," she added.

"Slide rules do not go out on dates either," she continued. "I can see it now, some geek saying 'let me compute the tip!'"

Birnbach suggested philosophy as a more acceptable major. "For example, can I prove I was really there in Brooks Brothers (B<sup>2</sup> in prep language) if nobody saw me?"

"Classics is good, too, because preps like old things better than new things," she said.

Birnbach also advocates English as a prep major because it makes you "basically unemployable." "That's the way it should be," Birnbach said, "then you can mooch off your parents for a while, or better yet, your friends' parents."

The Preppy Handbook editor also commented on prep sex. "Sex is something a girl gives to a guy when he is no longer impressed with her family's wealth," she said.

"Smoking is prep to," she said. "After all, what else can you do with the hand that's not holding the highball at a cocktail party?"

How preppy does Birnbach think Lehigh is? "Well, compared to the University of North Dakota, you're very prep," she answered.

The University failed in a major category, she said. Birnbach polled the audience and found General Hospital to be the most popular soap on campus. But, All My Children is the preppiest soap opera, according to Birnbach.

After a slide presentation of prep lifestyles, Birnbach invited members of the audience up to compete in the Student Activities Council's Most Male and Female Prep Fashion Contest.

Contestants were required to model their outfits, then chat with Miss Birnbach. "Where did you prep?, Where do you summer?" she asked them. Birnbach also checked closely for socks (T.T.F.W. — too tacky for words), labels, pearls, monograms, etc.

Birnbach even asked the men contestants what kind of underwear they were wearing. "Boxers, and not jockey shorts, are prep," according to Birnbach. One contestant, however, told Birnbach that he was wearing jockey shorts because he "needed the support."

Kathy Hutnik, '84, and Steven Hayes, '84, were chosen as the winners, and will dine together at Widow Brown's Inn.

"A preppy since she was a fetus," Birnbach was graduated from Riverdale Country Day School and Brown University. She is 24 and lives in New York City.

She claims she was "born to write the book." The prep world was in hiding and being enjoyed by only a few select few, she said, and someone had to expose it.

Many of Birnbach's friends and family assisted her with the book. In fact, most of the models found in the book are her friends. The clothes pictures, however, are mostly her own.

Birnbach's mother did some writing for the book, including the "I gave birth to a preppy" passage.

For the future, Birnbach says she already has three other book ideas. Also, Official Preppy desk diaries, calenders, drinking and vomit shirts (100 percent cotton because "synthetic fibers never touch a prep's body"), stationary (pink and green?), stickers, postcards, etc., are coming out next fall. "There's even talk of a preppy movie," Birnbach said.

Birnbach said she loves going around promoting the book. "I never knew I could make a living just talking," she said.

"It's hard to be the epitome of prep all the time," Birnbach says, and she admits she's not always totally prepped-out. "I just brought a pair of olive drab pants to wear with my cowboy boots," she said.

That's okay, Lisa, even alligators shed their skin once in a while.

The Lehigh Diet

mined what type of meat is contained in Greekers (and to which food group do the flies belong?).

A word of caution: do not try to satisfy one's protein needs by picking the pepperoni off other persons' slices of pizza.

Vegetarians need not despair. Soybean (a major ingredient in Lump) is an excellent source of protein — as is peanut butter. Stock up on the Reese's.

3. Vegetable — Fruit Group Sources of Vitamin A ...

— apples: a good crunchy food when studying gets boring.

— bananas: even more digestible when in Daiquiris.

Sources of Vitamin C ...

— the orange juice in screwdrivers

— the strawberries in shortcake

— the potato stuffing in pierogies (beware of the grease, it might be dangerous to one's health)

Dates are also the source of good things (but sometimes hard to find).

4. Bread and Cereal Group: provides iron, niacin, the B vitamins, and car-

To balance one's diet properly while at Lehigh, it is necessary to select foods every day from each of the four basic food groups ...

1. Milk Group (includes milk, ice cream, cheese): provides calcium.

It is possible to satisfy this requirement by guzzling milk at regular intervals. However, this could become quite boring — especially if one does not like the cow beverage.

Fortunately, Lehigh offers several other opportunities to stock up on calcium. These include ...

— drinking White Russians and sombreros at hotel parties.

— pigging out at the freshman ice cream bash.

— filling up at wine and cheese parties.

2. Meat Group (includes meat, poultry, fish, eggs): provides protein.

No one has yet conclusively deterbohydrates.

It is possible — but not always desirable — to stuff one's face with slices of Wonder. Beer is usually considered a more socially acceptable way of ingesting carbohydrates at Lehigh. However, total reliance on this beverage will result in frequent trips to the bathroom.

Popcorn is another popular source of carbohydrates. Owing to its light and fluffy texture, this substance is also a potential cause of food fights.

As for cereals — there's a Wheatena eater for every Captain Crunch junkie.

Gryphons in Action

A gryphon is a fictitious animal with the body and hind legs of a lion and the head and wings of an eagle. This formidable creature guarded the treasures within the castles of ancient mythology.

The gryphons at Lehigh are so named because they "guarded" freshmen—the treasures of the University. All residence halls accommodating first-year students are staffed with gryphons whose general responsibilities are to assist freshman with academic and personal problems. However, more highly specialized aid is sometimes needed. Gryphons — who are not professional counselors — will then direct the freshman to the appropriate person.

As an official staff member, the gryphon is charged with maintaining order in the living sections. Each dormitory must have at least one gryphon "on call" during weekend nights. Usually, a gryphon has dorm duty about twice a semester.

With the help of its gryphon, each living unit is expected to sponsor one educational and one social program a semester. The former often include lectures by faculty members. Spaghetti dinners and hotel parties are popular social events. Secret Santas abound at Christmas time while canoe trips and softball games are warm weather options.

The selection of new gryphons is done each semester. The entire process consists of three rounds of one-hour interviews. Gryphons do the interviewing and make up their own questions. At the end of each round, a selection meeting determines which candidates will go on to the next round. Those who go through the third round participate in a workshop to become more familiar with the job of a gryphon and the Gryphon Society. The final selection meeting lasts about six hours.

The first gryphon training session takes place in August before freshman orientation. Topics of discussion usually include human sexuality and orientation activities. The handling of emergencies is also covered along with some first aid. There is another shorter training session at the end of Christmas vacation.

Most gryphons participate in some form of inservice training during the semester. This often involves attending a movie, lecture, or workshop organized by the area coordinators. Contact with other gryphons is maintained at weekly dinners and periodic society meetings.

Boxing

After a lackluster season, the Boxing Squad went on to record its best season in the history of boxing at Lehigh. At Grace Hall in March, the Engineers placed third (among 15 colleges) in the annual Eastern Tournament. Senior John Young successfully defended his Eastern crown at 190.

Young went on to the nationals at Reno accompanied by Andy Okada who got the 112 lb. wild-card selection. Both seniors came back to Lehigh as newly crowned national collegiate boxing champs. John Young defeated both of his opponents by Knock-outs while Andy Okada, a former Lehigh wrestler, outboxed his opponents for decisive victories. These two Lehigh boxers won for the Brown & White team a fourth place in the entire nation. Thus, 1981 was the best boxing year in Lehigh history!

It's Wednesday morning, 3 a.m. As I sit at my desk in my tiny "apartment" in M&M, my roommate sleeps peacefully. So do the rest of the people on the hall, save those few poor souls with an 8:00 exam.

Press night officially ended about an hour and a half ago, when the managing editor, the desk editors and the news editor all went home, leaving me with the copy, headlines, and layout to read and check over. With only a few sets of eyes checking over everything, mistakes will naturally occur. Unfortunately, at 3 a.m., I don't know how many I will find.

All of this starts about 4 p.m. every Sunday and Wednesday when a few of the editors drop by the Brown and White office in the basement of the U.C. and prepare their desks for the flood of articles which will (should) appear before them in about a half hour. By 4:30 all the editors are usually here. Reporters are supposed to have their articles turned in to their editors by 4:30, but this is college; 5:00 isn't bad (that's what they think, at least).

Dinner breaks come between 5-7, depending on where each editor lives. During those two hours, the press room is like the city morgue, with only a few dead-looking bodies going about their twice weekly routine with no one around to watch.

At 7, the press nighters arrive. To B&W editors, press nighters are the gophers, the handymen and women who type press releases, retype sloppy copy and write short news briefs from the information given to them. They leave at 10, but not before getting a shot at a piece of the pizza which usually arrives somewhere around 9:30. Even press nighting has its rewards.

The editors usually stay until 12:30 or 1:00, sometimes later. Sports and features are usually done first, and later photo. The editorial board, consisting of the editor-in-Chief, managing editor and editorial page editor, usually stay the longest, along with one of the news editors, who has to assign the stories for the next issue.

Finally, the editor-in-Chief is the last one to leave, taking with him all the copy (articles), photographs, headlines and layout sheets, to be checked over one more time before they are dropped off at Bernie's — South Side print shop owner Bernie Fetsko, whose Peerless Publications at Fourth and Polk Streets in Bethlehem takes over from here.

The paper is printed twice a week, on Tuesday and Friday, with space age equipment at Bernie's print shop. Sunday and Wednesday the paper is put together, much like it was tonight, with changes and corrections made the next night after everything is set into type. Last minute checks are done the morning of the press run, just to make sure everything is ok and nothing is missing. Occasionally, someone has to yell "Stop the presses" for an important late story, and the paper comes out late. But that's the newspaper business for you. Something always fouls it up.

For most Brown and Whitters, the paper is more than an extracurricular activity. Reporters get one academic credit, editors two. Reporters spend about 3 — 8 hours a week interviewing, writing and typing their stories. Editors spend 20 — 30 hours writing, editing, and assigning stories. The managing editor usually spends more than 30 hours a week with press nights, trips to the printer and editorial board sessions. The editor-in-Chief can count on 40 hours or more with most of the administrative work and meetings on top of the regular operations of the paper.

To put all of this into a weekly schedule that includes going to class, studying for exams and sleeping, something usually gives. The first to go is sleep ... sorry ... next is grades. And finally, when all else has failed, the paper will suffer. At least that's the way it is for most of the editors and even some of the reporters — those who want to see the Brown and White excell. Usually it works. Sometimes it doesn't. None of it would be possible without the team effort and the support of the professors of journalism. And journalism secretary Ruth Mathis, too. Well, I've gotta get some sleep. Oops, I almost forgot, I have to take the rest of the copy to the printer. Well, then I'll get some sleep. It's been fun. Thanks for a great year staff. See you next year.

Choir

The Choir, under the direction of Dr. Steven Sametz, enjoyed a very successful '80-'81 season. From its intensive, three-day workshop, held during freshman orientation to its performance of Mozart's C Minor Mass in April, the Choir enjoyed a full year.

The parent's Day concert in October was an ambitious program, with choral selections from the Renaissance to the contemporary. The Choir took this same program to Jim Thorpe, home of Asa Packer, where they gave a benefit concert for the Mauch Chunk Opera House.

Christmas Vespers, a festival of Lessons and Carols, celebrated the joy of Christmas. Vespers included congregational carols and scripture lessons read by leaders of the Lehigh community.

The highlight of the Choir's season was a tour of Puerto Rico. Beautiful weather, vibrant performances, and enthusiastic audiences made the six day tour one the Choir will never forget.

Interfraternity Council

Better known as the IFC, this is the representative body governing fraternity affairs and coordinating fraternity activities.

It provides the machinery for self-government and discipline within the fraternity system, as well as a means of communication among fraternities on such subjects as pledge education, rushing, and chapter management through the Fraternity Management Association.

The IFC extends the educational process for fraternity men to exercise their potential in terms of political, organizational, and administrative capabilities as well as service to both the campus and community.

Mustard and Cheese is Lehigh's drama organization and it is involved in most of the productions seen on campus. Students are involved in every aspect of the productions from directing and managing to acting.

The advisor for the club is Professor Jeffrey Milet, and the 1980-1981 officers included Jeff Helm, Ed Kahn, Kathy Maz, and Rosie Caraway. Major productions this year included The Fantasticks, Waiting for Godot, and Vanities which was student directed by Ed Kahn. The culmination of the year was in the student directed production Butterflies are Free.

Living

Life on the South Side

by Varuni Nelson

800 University students live off campus — many on streets — such as Carlton, West Packer, and Montclair — whose names are becoming increasingly familiar to all students. The reasons behind the exodus from Greek houses and dormitories are many and varied.

Being able to choose with whom one lives is one of the advantages of living off campus. Sure, one must learn to deal with undesirables — but why confront them in the bathroom every morning?

Living in a house is luxury after having been cooped up in a dorm room. Some tenants even have a backyard in which to grow a weed or two. (However, short-lived is he who thinks the entire residence is his to clutter).

Pretest panic is less likely to strike when one is not surrounded by other frenzied faces. Any off campus dweller who wants to be neurotic can visit the library.

No longer is one forced to quiet a growling stomach with one of three mysterious burnt offerings. Off campus students can eat anything they want (limited only by time, money, and culinary skill.) However, failure to visit Food Lane regularly may result in the cupboard being bare except for bran cereal and salad dressing. Roommates may try to save one from starvation — but it is a rule of nature that everyone runs out of food simultaneously.

Depending on where they live, off campus students are close to Manny's, Bloomers, or the 4th St. Saloon.

Living off campus rather than in a dorm room makes throwing a party easier. This is especially true if the family next door is deaf.

Students who live off campus must deal with problems never encountered by those who dwell behind the locked doors of residence halls. (Oh, the things my gryphon never told me . . .)

- (1) Landlords — especially those who pretend not to know English
- (2) Cleaning — a weekly schedule is essential. No one ever volunteers to clean the bathroom.
- (3) Neighbours' pets — especially the hungry Doberman Pinschers.
- (4) Toilet paper — the job of maintaining an adequate supply is important enough to warrant assigning someone to the task full time.
- (5) Curious passersby — especially those who do not pass by, choosing instead to linger uninvited in one's backyard. Tightly drawn curtains are the best way to spoil their fun.
- (6) Parents' reactions — "How could our little girl — raised so carefully in an upper middle class suburb — live in an alley across from a drinking club?"

In Memoriam

Larry F. Rizzo

It was love that saved Larry's life. He wasn't much at expressing his love, but if you watched carefully, you could see it showing. He loved his brothers in a rough and tumble way, his father in a quiet way, and his mother in a loud way. I know he loved me, as certainly as I know that I love him.

It was the love of all the people who knew him that kept him alive, that built up and bolstered the strength that made him come back time after time. Larry has taught me lessons in dignity and strength and the wellsprings of hope that I shall never forget. His courage is what also saved his life, and I say his life was saved because his fight gave special meaning to his life and a new meaning to mine. His life was saved because he saved it, savoured it, and earned all of his last days.

Despite the sometimes unsavory reputation fraternities have endured throughout the years, we have continued in our pursuit of a better brotherhood, a unified body with a singleness of purpose. Little recognition is made of the fraternity's awesome responsibility, that being the molding and transforming of forty separate individuals, forty distinct and sometimes conflicting personalities, into a family.

The bulk of fraternity exposure seems solely devoted to excess imbibing and socially unacceptable behavior, yet the function of turning boys into men, of turning the irresponsible into the responsible, of turning the underachievers into an ambitious and driven young man goes wholly unnoticed.

As the problems of society are scrutinized by journalists and written about in editorials, we as a group become aware of these very same problems on an intimate and personal level, and our ability to deal with these problems reflects our resolution to endure our strength of character.

Let it be known that the brother of Delta Upsilon face this challenge with a relentless spirit and with a continuing desire to improve the contributions of our brotherhood to the betterment of society.

Seniors

The Lehigh Experience

by Tisha Amoruso

We numbered 1058. One thousand and fifty-eight confident, secure, high school seniors miraculously transformed into 1058 frightened, anxious college freshmen. Any feelings of apprehension we had months before when accepting the University's offer of admission had only been intensified that summer when many of us had received letters asking if we were "really sure" we wanted to attend Lehigh. The University, it seems, had gotten back more acceptances than it had originally anticipated: 61 more to be exact. And by the time the class of '81 turned out to register as Lehigh University undergraduates in the fall of 1977, University administrators were just about recovered from their previous state of panic.

This says nothing, however, as to the panic that began to set in for the members of the class of '81. Many students found themselves on over-crowded halls; in triple rooms that previously had been doubles, and in small rooms that looked suspiciously like study lounges. One group of 55 found themselves cast into a cluster of four houses on a street called Warren Square that no one else in the University seemed to know existed. As we moved our 18 years worth of treasured possessions into one small room that would serve as home for the next year, we wondered if we indeed "were really sure we wanted to attend Lehigh."

The heat that first week was sweltering — the kind we thought no longer existed in the 20th century. The air-conditioned comfort of home was sorely missed. Those late August days taught us how to sweat — something we would do many more times in our University career, and not always as a result of the weather. Learning how to endure the heat, however, was replaced later by more arduous tasks such as sharing a 10 foot by 20 foot room, eating the food at the U.C., and walking up steep hills for a class, or even a beer.

August 26th. It seemed like the day would never end. Probably the first person each of us met was the gryphon, a unique breed of student with good grades who seemed to actually enjoy Lehigh. Gryphons, we learned, contained a wealth of information, including, what the "true gut" courses are at Lehigh, the fact that Deming Lewis is the University President, and the reputation of each and every fraternity on the hill.

Introductions abounded that day as we met roommates, hallmates, dorm-mates — was it really possible that soon we would all be good friends? The lucky ones among us had our parents stay long enough to make sure that not only were we "settled in", but that no insects of greater magnitude than a fly would ever visit our rooms for extended periods of time. One thing was for certain — your room never again got a cleaning like the kind that only Mom can give.

When we finally ventured out as full-fledged college freshmen, we were presented with our first lesson — learning to stand on line. We encountered lines everywhere — for our ID validations, for our meal card pictures, at the registrar's, at the bursar's, at the bookstore — was Lehigh more abundant in hills or in lines?

We received our rosters and realized with dismay that the registrar didn't care if we couldn't rise out of bed before 11 a.m. And perhaps it was fear, or maybe mere naivete, but for that first week, we attended every single class listed on that blue roster.

Orientation weekend was filled with the ice-cream bash, the Saucon Valley picnic and the dance in Upper Grace Hall — all freshman activities that we would never see again as upperclassmen. The following Tuesday was the freshmen rally with the unforgettable John Steckbeck. Through Steck's efforts, the students that hesitantly recited "Hiya Steck" at first, became unified as a class there in Grace Hall to the sounds of "Drinking beer and having fun, we're the class of '81." Steck, with his perpetual love and respect for students, had accepted our slightly "radical" motto and enthusiastically led us in chanting until we were truly a "Class". The University, however, later gave us a more "presentable" motto: "We're the ones who'll get things done: '81"

The year continued in a never-ending stream of new experiences and memories; the midnight dorm pizza parties, Lehigh-Lafayette weekend, and the beauty of the campus in the fall. And every weekend we were lured to the partying on "the Hill" — an alcoholic montage of band parties happy hours and pubnights. We had a winning year of concerts in Grace Hall (which included Billy Joel and Carly Simon), as well as a winning season in football. The Lehigh Engineers captured the NCAA Division II championship title. Later that winter, we experienced another notable University event — a snow day.

By the time we embarked on our second set of finals, we looked back with wonderment. Could it really have been a year already? it seemed just yesterday . . .

The Lehigh atmosphere often pervaded as a warm security blanket of a good friend that's been around a long time. But even as we were lulled into a sense of security, we could not help but be aware of the world around us. Our sophomore year witnessed the death of two popes, the signing of an Arab-Israeli peace treaty and a nuclear accident at Three mile island. The Shah of Iran fell, as did Skylab later that summer. One thing that didn't fall was the price of gas as we waited on long gas lines during "odd-even" gas rationing.

For many of us, sophomore year proved to be a continuation of adventures and learning. Men and women who had joined the world the Greeks encountered a new living alternative, many of the men as pledges. Pledges were creatures that seemed remotely similar to your Great Aunt Emma's butler, although they were often asked to do things old Aunt Emma never would have dreamed of.

For some, a second year at Lehigh seemed a further injustice of "them against us." Dorm residents who hadn't fully understood the concept of sophomores being placed at "the bottom of the housing list" back in February were supplied with a clear definition in the fall. It meant moving into a room that had just narrowly escaped the "unfit for human habitation" standards. Surprise! Sophomores are given the lowest priority in the res. ops. lottery. The Lehigh sophomore, realizing there had to be more spacious places on campus, began seeking out new refuges. The favorites: The U.C. snack bar and Uncle Manny's. Anyone who had missed the thrill of sneaking into Manny's freshman year probably first discovered this local corner bar in sophomore year. And the people who could be found frequenting both places usually varied little. One of the nicest things we noticed were the increasing amounts of faces on campus that were familiar to us. Having been replaced as freshmen by the class of '82 didn't seem quite as disastrous as we had expected back in May.

One advantage to being a sophomore was "knowing the ropes." Never again would you wait on line at the bookstore to buy your books on registration day. One year had taught us all we needed to know as far as which classes to take and which professors to avoid. "University" had become less formidable and "college" was beginning to take shape. There were some drawbacks, however — things that characterized the term "Sophomore Slump." Gone were the introductory-level courses, as we now had to take courses numbered above the teens. We experienced the reality of "all-nighters" and the dreadfulness of places such as Mart's all-night study room and the Computer Center. We suddenly became extremely accountable for our actions. The indecisiveness that had been encouraged as "exploration" in freshman year became a near-misdemeanor at the end of sophomore year. "What do you mean you're not sure what you want to do with your life?" Sophomore year marked the "declaration of the major."

Our second year also signified the first time we were allowed to have cars on campus. And as we acquainted our cars with the University's hills, we became acquainted with both a massive parking problem and the tickets issued by the Motor Vehicle Office.

As our sophomore year drew to a close, the Dean of Students office was engaged in a period of considerable staff turnover, which evoked much of campus comment and criticism. Perhaps it was a sign of the changes we would witness in the two years to come . . .

When our junior year began, many of the class of '81 started to get nervous — we had passed the half-way mark. Was it possible that in less than two years we would be college graduates? As juniors, quite a number of faces disappeared and reappeared as some left to study abroad or at another school, or to work at internships in nearby cities.

World tension was building as the major events of the year included the seizure of the U.S. hostages in Iran, the fighting in Afghanistan, and the subsequent boycott of the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow. Americans also suffered the eruption of Mount St. Helens and rejoiced in the Winter Olympic victory of the U.S. hockey team.

The University was busy changing. The well-traveled dirt path down the U.C. lawn had been cemented, and a "plaza" formed in the middle. The U.C. Snack Bar had undergone a complete "face-lift", with church pews and carpeting. But the most dramatic change was the addition of a dormitory to the Lehigh scene Broadhead House, a 200-person occupancy complete with a dining hall, laundry room, and recreation and study lounges (not to mention air-conditioning) was situated "downhill" on the corner of E. Morton and Vine Streets. Many of the class of '81 called Lehigh's newest dormitory "home" for the next two years.

Most of our lives, we had been promised that our junior year in college would prove the most difficult. We were not disappointed. Whether engineer, business student or "artsie," we found ourselves swamped with more work than we thought possible. We worked hard, some for the grade, others for the sheer knowledge, but we worked hard. Consequently, our free time became more valuable and we shared it selectively with close friends. In spite of the work, many of us claimed junior year to be better than the rest.

One possible reason was that this was the time many of the class of '81 turned 21 years old — legal at last! In the past, Pennsylvania's drinking laws had made us very conscious of being "underage." Thus, no 21st birthday celebration was complete without a drink in the local bar.

We suffered some sad moments too, especially at the loss of John Steckbeck. Although this great man was gone, we were thankful that we knew him, and shared in the memories.

By junior year, the "newness" of Lehigh that every freshman experiences had worn off. The hill parties that we had reveled in as freshman began to represent merely an abuse of alcohol. We questioned the role of the Forum, the Student Activities (or "lack of concerts") Council, and the male-female ratio. Discontent was showing and we began to search for alternatives . . .

Senior year manifested the results of much of that searching. One example was the number of seniors that moved off-campus. Montclair Ave, Carlton Ave, Fifth St, even the North Side, became home for many seniors, providing an escape to privacy and comfort unlike that of a dorm, fraternity or sorority house.

Several "new faces" on campus continued to develop. The deserted area between Drinker and M&M that had always become very muddy when it rained, was transformed into "the Per-gula," ideal for outdoor parties. Our senior year was also the year of the Steel Structure. Popping up all over campus were steel structures that some viewed as art, others considered, well, just a piece of steel.

Senior year witnessed the creation of "the Hourglass," a twice-monthly event designed as a social alternative to the hill. Good food, good entertainment, and good times were shared every other Thursday at the Snack Bar in what proved to be a very successful undertaking. In addition, we also watched the beginning of the Faculty Comedy Hour, an event that would become yearly.

But what will probably remain in our minds as the single most representative part of senior year concerned our plans for the next year. The job search, the medical, law, and graduate school applications took up a large portion of our time as seniors.

The apprehension and uncertainty revolving around the question "what do I do after graduation?" was a feeling shared by all of us. Those in the midst of the job search found themselves spending more time in the Placement Office than in their classrooms. Those taking graduate admissions tests and applying to schools waited with anticipation for the day it would be "all over."

Regardless of our concerns about the year to come, however, we still tried to remember that we were, finally, seniors. And in case anyone forgot, they were quickly reminded by our kindly Senior Class Gift Solicitors. The Senior Class Auction, the Senior Class cocktail parties — reminders that we had made it. Well, almost.

Our football team demonstrated a wonderful last season as we made it to the NCAA Division I AA Semifinals — played right in our own Taylor Stadium. We viewed our famed wrestling squad in Stabler Arena, remembering the matches we had seen freshman year in Grace Hall. We could also remember the concerts there freshman year as we enjoyed another successful year of entertainment, only this time in the Arena. In retrospect, we realized that our senior year had seen many changes.

Unfortunately, our senior year was also a time of increased violence around the world. We were shocked and upset at the murder of John Lennon in New York City. We watched with horror as assassination attempts were made on the lives of President Ronald Reagan in Washington and Pope John Paul II in Vatican City. The violence on campus also increased, and the Brown and White reported riots, assaults, arson, theft, and even an alleged rape. It would be an error to say that these events did not put a damper on our senior year.

As our graduation date grew closer, however, our excitement at the prospect of "getting out" increased. We started to do ordinary things with more enthusiasm. As our days at Lehigh grew less and less, an "I-may-never-do-this-again-at-Lehigh-as-an-undergraduate" sentiment prevailed. We relished our final football game, our last Greek weekend, each senior cocktail party. We threw our books in the air after our last class, and we threw them away after our last final. We had reached the home-stretch — we were finally, really, graduating. All that remained were a few more nights at Manny's, one last set of grades, and a final senior weekend of partying. We packed up our four years of accumulated memorabilia, and we waited.

When the class of '81 returns as Alumni, we will find many more changes to be sure. W. Deming Lewis, the University's President for 18 years retires on July 1, 1982; a presidential search committee was formed in our senior year. We will never be students working in the new addition to Mart, an architectural masterpiece that will have the dual purpose of serving as an entranceway to Lehigh. (Although as alumni, we will probably get to pay for it, according to Tony Corallo, director of physical planning.) A foreign language requirement, a public relations major, and the new STS science for the humanities courses will never affect us as students.

Our four years at Lehigh, from 1977 to 1981, however, were significant ones for the growth of the University. In addition to the numerous physical changes, communication and awareness improved between faculty, administration, and students. Issues such as social alternatives, student governance, and University discipline were allowed a critical first step of reassessment during our stay here. The events that transpired in those four years, constructive as well as destructive were pleas for change. The University had no choice but to respond. And while these were formative years for Lehigh, they were also important years for the class of '81.

We were thrust into a period of growing maturity. However false our Lehigh atmosphere seemed at times, we were constantly aware of the hard, cold world that lurked beyond our campus. We learned how to function on our own, without the help of family; how to live among other people, often virtual strangers; and how to understand and apply ourselves to knowledge and learning. Most important was that we grew.

The students that graduated from Lehigh University on May 31, 1981 were very different from those who entered in August of 1977. As individuals, we grew older, wiser, and hopefully more responsible in those four years. As a class, our shared experiences had formed an inseparable bond of memories between us. Perhaps the most difficult part of graduating from Lehigh was leaving behind the friends that we had made there. But one thing was for certain: we would never leave behind the memories.

1981 Epitome

The 1981 Epitome, printed by offset lithography was published by Hunter Publishing Co., Winston-Salem, North Carolina. The paper used is primarily #80 Embossed Enamel; #80 Gloss paper is used in the signatures that contain color photographs. Body copy is set in 10-point Palatino, whereas identifications are set in 8-point Palatino italics. Body copy in the senior section is set in 10-point Times Roman, and the identifications are set in 8-point Times Roman. The predominant headline style is 24-point Quadrata.

Most of the photographs used in this book are the work of University students. The senior portraits and most of the group pictures were taken by Merin Studios, Philadelphia. Athletic team photos were done by Ryan Studios, Bethlehem.

Acknowledgments

Well, my job as Editor-in-Chief of the 1981 Epitome is finally drawing to an end. Sometimes it seemed there was so much work that the book would never be finished. With the dedication of many people it is. There have been many problems but they were overcome with hard work, and long hours. I would like to thank all the people who helped out.

Business manager Clarice May knew a lot more about the book than I did when we started. Her constant help and advice was much appreciated. Her management of the money was invaluable as was her efficient staff.

The section editors all deserve special recognition for their outstanding work. They all aided in making my job a little bit easier and that I would like to thank them all.

Several other positions are much deserving of mention. Our photo editors Brian Allston and June Kuvin not only supplied us with pictures but helped with layouts, scheduling and many other things that came up. Our identification editor, Steve Russell, did a great job always without a complaint (wait until next year). Sue Perkins took the difficult job of scheduling and made it seem easy. Finally, copy editor Varuni Nelson was always willing and could write beautifully about anything.

Steve Merin, our publisher's representative was always there to give advice and to help make deadlines — chicken pox and everything. I'd also like to thank Donna, Lee, Jeff, Marvin and all of Merin Studios for all the time that they have put into this book.

The journalism department was extremely helpful throughout the year. Advisor, Professor Sharon Friedman offered much support and encouragement. Professors Joseph McFadden, Robert Sullivan and Walter Trimble were also always willing when questions and problems arose (which was quite often). Journalism secretary Ruth Mathis did much more than anyone could ask. She typed, answered phones, and was someone to talk to about anything (even Cliff and Clarice).

Two people helped out with the Epitome this year for the first time. They were always willing to do any job. Without Maria Mastras and Allysa Scott completing this book would have seemed impossible.

To my roommates Cindy, Donna and Linda I would like to express my appreciation for not only putting up with me for this past year but also the constant phone calls.

My friends were invaluable. They were always there when I got discouraged and they were always willing to help out.

Finally, I would like to thank my family. Their concern and support always made the difficult times a little bit easier.

Lehigh has been four years of good times and happiness. I hope that the 1981 Epitome can be a way of looking back at all the memories.
